Programme

Target group

Senior to mid level professionals actively taking part in the processes of law-making and national law approximation procedure/harmonization of national legislation with EU acquis, from the following institutions: Central EU integration coordination institution, Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Public administration, Ministry of Economy and regional development, Ministry of Finance, as well as other state bodies actively involved in the procedure of legal alignment.

Description

The body of national law derived from EU directives and regulations expands into all areas of government, and officials in both national and EU administrative bodies play an increasingly active role as administrators and enforcers of EU law. Therefore, they need sufficient understanding of EU law to avoid actions incompatible with EU rules, leading to compensation claims against them and their authority. On the other hand, EU regulatory affairs professionals from business and professional associations are required to possess good knowledge of the EU legislative framework in order to actively influence the EU law-making process.

The course is divided into three parts, all taking into account the changes brought about by the Lisbon Treaty. It first provides a comprehensive overview of the constitutional organisation of the European Union, including the fundamental principles on which the Union is founded (5 days). Secondly, it offers an overview of specific policy areas (2 days). Lastly, it a) introduces a practical overview of the implementation of EU law at the EU level (comitology) and by the Member States and the consequences thereof for the EU Member States in terms of administrative capacities and human resources and b) updates participants on current development affecting the EU today (3 days).

When reviewing the constitutional organisation of the EU, particular attention will be paid to the legislative and institutional framework of the EU, including the functioning, inter-relation and decision-making processes of the various institutions and the role of the Member States in these processes as well as possible consequences of not fulfilling Treaty obligations. In addition, the procedures for the EU law implementation at EU level (the new comitology procedure) will be analysed in more detail in order to fine-tune participants' knowledge about differences between different categories of legal acts introduced by the Lisbon Treaty (legislative vs. non-legislative acts). The sessions on implementation at the national level discuss practical approaches to identify national capacity needs and to react accordingly.

The sessions focusing on Internal Market law will explain the universal operation of principles founding the four freedoms, for example, the non-discrimination, proportionality and mutual recognition principles, while the sessions on Justice Freedom and Security focus on judicial and law enforcement co-operation, the free movement of people (including 3rd country nationals) and e-justice. The programme also reviews the EU judicial system, including the tasks, structure and procedures of the European Courts and their role in the development of the law as well as the national courts' role as enforcers of EU law.

Based on feedback from former participants, the sessions on "current issues" have been expanded to provide more time for discussion on issues raised.

Learning Methodology

The Summer School is highly interactive in nature, and although it is based upon a solid foundation of presentations, more than forty percent of the time will be dedicated to workshops, case studies, simulations and a study visit to the European Court of Justice.

Case-studies and workshops will put the knowledge gained by participants in a practical context to demonstrate the relevance and consequences of the EU rules for their daily work.

During the second part of the programme (see above), participants will be able to choose between two different sets of sessions: one focusing on internal market issues or one covering justice and home affairs, thus allowing participants to tailor the summer school to meet their personal and professional needs and interests.

Objectives:

- To provide participants with in-depth knowledge of the fundamental concepts of EU law and EU law-making process and to deepen their understanding of the obligations imposed by EU law;
- To offer a practical overview of the implementation of EU law at both the EU and national levels;
- To allow participants to gain practical understanding of the comitology process after Lisbon;
- To fine-tune practical understanding of the relevance and impact of EU legislation on their daily work and the mechanisms of its correct implementation into national systems;
- With regard to the implementation of EU law, special attention will be paid to the similarities and differences between the EU Member States and the Candidate and Associate countries;
- To provide a platform for the exchange of experience, information sharing and professional networking.

Participants' obligations:

In line with the successful practice introduced in the 2014 edition of EIPA's Summer School on EU Law and Its Implementation, the most important of which are related to the conditions to be met in order to receive the certificate of attendance, ReSPA participants in the Summer school must:

1. attend 100% of the class room sessions and study visits;¹
2. submit, at the latest 4 weeks after the end of the Summer School, a final paper (max 8 pages) in English on the topic closely related to that of the Summer school. Participants will receive exact topics and guidelines for the papers at a later stage.

The submitted papers will be reviewed and returned to the individual participants with comments by EIPA's faculty staff. Please note that a copy of the submitted papers and EIPA's comments will be submitted to ReSPA.

Please note that the remaining second instalment of per diems will be paid to the participants upon receipt of confirmation of their regular attendance, boarding passes and valid instructions for payment from abroad, as well as the submission of final paper. Only participants who comply with all the above stated conditions will receive the certificate of attendance.
